JUDGE DISMISSED GRAIN CO. APPEAL

Important Decision Rendered in Assessment Appeal in District Court.

In the District court this morning before Judge Taylor judgment was given dismissing the appeal of the Alberta Grain Co. against their city assessment. The company had an elevator on the C. N. R. right of way north of the station, and they claimed that they were exempt from the assessment of the C. N. R. agreement made with the province four years ago.

The city assessor took the ground that the agreement did not specify that the land should be used by elevators for commercial purposes, and upon this ground the assessment was upheld.

The amount of taxes involved in this case was only $25, but it was a number of other assessments of the C. N. R. property that are in the same class, and the assessor's decision is that there will be no further appeal as to the legality of the assessment.

This is the first year that since the first year that the Alberta Grain Company's site and other taxes on the C. N. R. right of way.

Walter Hume Long, former chief secretary for Ireland, said that Premier Asquith expressed the sentiment that the whole bill is a compromise.

VOLUNTARY ALLEGIANCE THE BASIS OF THE EMPIRE.

The existence of the British Empire is to be left frankly and absolutely to the voluntary allegiance of the race the world over.

This is the conclusion from the ebbled reports of the plan of defence adopted by the Imperial Defence Conference. All those reports, he corrects Canada, Australia and the other Dominions are to be left to develop naval squadrons of their own, at their own expense and under their own control, primarily designed to defend their own shores, but also capable of co-operation or conjunction with the British fleet in emergency.

Assuming the report to be correct as there is every reason to suppose, it will meet the warm approval of the great body of Canadians, as no doubt of the people of the other dominions. It embodies a frank admission that the Empire exists only because the people of the Empire want it to exist, that it would have otherwise no right to exist or to be made to exist; it respects to the full the cardinal principle of local control of local taxation, and by admitting the fact and respecting the principle it appeals to the love of justice and liberty in the people of the Empire to maintain the Imperial relationship under which these are so simply secured, and without which none of the Overseas Dominions would be secure.

The arrangement will not, of course, be acceptable to all Canadians, nor probably to all Australians, nor to all South Africans. There are in the Overseas Dominions, as in the Mother Land, those who put more faith in force than in voluntary co-operation, force that in voluntary co-operation, and by admitting the fact and respecting the principle it appeals to the love of justice and liberty in the people of the Empire to maintain the Imperial relationship under which these are so simply secured, and without which none of the Overseas Dominions would be secure.

There have been empires in the world before, empires as great in area, in population, in wealth, in military strength, in proportion to the world of their time, as the British Empire is today. But they went down, and they went down not before the sword of foes from without, but through the disintegrating agencies of dissension and distrust within. Rome might still be Rome if its people had been associated in voluntary allegiance.

But the dwellers in the outlying dominions were subject peoples, were treated as subject peoples, and when the hour of trial came they reacted precisely as subject peoples might be expected to act. Every world-empire before our own was founded on force and held together by the dominating strength of the mother people, or of the conquering people by whose sword it was carved out. Naturally they stood only so long as the founders were strong enough to both quell dissension at home and repel invaders from abroad.

The British Empire rests on a different basis and proceeds on a different principle. British ones tried to rule on a colony of her people, and just because they were British people the force failed, sharply and miserably. To the credit of British imperialism and the British people the offense was never repeated. The colonies of British became the children, not slaves. Now grown to the estate of manhood these are offering and asking to be allowed to relieve the Mother Land of the burden of defending them from attack, and of shaping their own defence in such fashion that they can be turned against her enemies too. Very wisely the Mother Land declines to turn them longer as infants but as men.

capable and willing to fight their own weapons after their own fashion, and in doing it with the thought that she, too, may need their help.

The fire-breasters and jingoists in the country, the naval plan outlined is a triumph of British genius for Empire building. It is an admission that no other race on earth has yet made respecting overseas colonies, that the possession of colonies is justified in the interest of the people of the colonies. It is on a par with the state-manship which gave responsible government to the people of Quebec, and which recently granted a free constitution to the federation of South Africa. The world has not before seen a Mother Land which took her overseas possessions into partnership with her self in the matter of defence and left them free to develop their own means along their own lines, relying solely on their loyalty that the means so developed would contribute to her own security, or would not even be turned against her. It is one more declaration that the Empire stands for liberty and that its people are willing to stake its existence on their faith in liberty. That an Imperial Defence Conference should have been called, at the suggestion and with the enthusiastic approval of the Overseas Dominions, is the best possible evidence of the stability of voluntary allegiance as the basis of Empire. The conference would have been woefully ignorant of what made itself possible if it had ignored this factor or relegated it to any secondary position in outlining its plan for future action. The Empire should be an organism, not a machine.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Those pilot that he was crazy to avoid the gallows, and now pleads that he is sane to get out of the asylum. He must take the judges to be crazy.

The Calgary Herald has Dr. Gray's schoolboy colonialization scheme located on a ranch near Piddis. The introduction of the story seems to be all that was changed.

Eight tons of Australian rabbits were shipped to Canada last year. As they were dead the publication of this information cannot be classed as an interesting revelation.

A London cable meets another proof conference. Perhaps a second conference would amount to something, if the various round of the first were considered to have exhausted the preliminaries and left the delegates free to get down to business.

The Montreal Herald prints a picture of a scene at the Cannon inquiry into civic grafting. If the high contracting parties and the spectators resemble their respective photographs the court seems to have the wrong parties on the griddle.

Mrs. Annie Bosan, the high priestess of theosophy, says she was a young girl in the days of "Good Queen Bess." Her rate she has lived on it. This ought to dull the pens of her critics. A lady who has lived so long can hardly be wondered at for developing peculiarities.

The British News thinks Canada should not complain about the United States tariff while giving a preference to Britain. Well, we have heard that Canada complain about it yet. The trouble with the News and its tribe is that they want Canada to worry about their tariff and Canada worry about their tariff.

A Washington judge has decided that playing marbles "for keeps" is gambling. That judge never played marbles or he would know that it is no game of chance; that the chap who can most straight gets the marbles and the other fellows have no chance at all. If it is wrong then the whole business system of the world is wrong. For what is this but a game into which one puts his money or his work depending on his skill to win it back with something more?

The Toronto Mail relieves itself of a column of twaddle about the ineffectiveness of the labor department in the Nova Scotia coal strike. According to the Mail the department secured an investigation in accord with the Lomax act and when the award of the board was not accepted by the disputants the department declined to interfere further. This is the Mail's grievance, that having administered the law it is just to administer. Mr. King did not go beyond the law and do something more. What particular direction it would have his illegal intervention take the Mail does not inform the world.

Lord Rosebery Offers Villa.

Rome, August 18.—News from a trustworthy source says Lord Rosebery has offered his magnificent sea-front villa, near Naples, to the British government as a summer residence for its ambassador at Rome. The government, it is said, has accepted the gift, and the transfer will take place in a few days' time.

MOVE ON!—MOVE ON!!

We have been doing police duty in every department.
All laggards and loiterers given the "move on, move on" sign.

We must be custodians of our own stocks—we must compel tag-ends, oddments and endments to "move on" in this store—stagnation is the death of trade.

We go after them with the big stick, and Prices are radically and effectively reduced.

What is the natural result? What happens to seasonable, desirable, fashionable goods when they are priced far below regular? They "move on," and they move at a pretty lively gait.

These are the facts of the story we have to tell you today,
But the figures are the interesting part of it.

Remember—It's time for all summer goods to go. Fall goods are pushing them from behind. They must "move on." Remember—All sorts of oddments and endments of staple lines have received "move on" orders, and will leave the store in triple quick time.
